Course Overview

This course introduces students to various perspectives and approaches to marketing that show how marketing theory and practice has developed and what the major contemporary issues for marketing theory and practice are. Both micro and macro marketing perspectives are considered as well as American, European and Australasian perspectives.

Assumed Knowledge

All students should have completed an undergraduate degree in marketing or the equivalent.

Course Aims

The aims of this course are:

- To introduce students to major issues in marketing theory and practice
- To develop in students an appreciation of the role of theory in developing marketing practice
- To broaden and deepen student’s understanding and appreciation of the nature and role of marketing in society and the economy
- To provide students with an opportunity to critically reflect upon the way marketing is practiced in the organisations they work for
- To develop in students an ability to understand and critically review contemporary academic and non-academic writing on marketing
- To provide a common foundation for further study in marketing

Course Coordinator

Ian Wilkinson was educated in the UK and Australia and has held academic posts at various American, European as well as Australian universities, including: Berkeley, Bath, Cincinnati, Temple, Lancaster, Stockholm School of Economics and UIBE, Beijing. He has published three books and over 150 research papers and he is a member of the editorial review board of eight international journals. His current work focuses the development and management of interfirm relations and networks in domestic and international business and the dynamics of markets and industrial networks, including an interest in complexity theory and its implications for marketing and management. He has been a consultant to many firms and organisations, was a member of the Australian Government’s Trade Policy Advisory Committee and a judge of the Multicultural Marketing Awards.
Course Structure

Seminar

1. 3 March
   am) Welcome, Introductions and Course Overview: The Domain of Marketing

   S. Hunt “General Theories and Fundamental Explananda in Marketing” Journal of Marketing Fall 1983, 9-17

2. 10 March (am) History of Marketing Thought

   R. A. Layton “Marketing Systems – A Core Macromarketing Concept” Journal of Macromarketing (forthcoming)

Questions

1. Is the “standard chronology” of business development through production, sales and marketing orientations still of value? What are the limitations of this model? Where might it be useful?

2. The functional, commodity and institutional approaches were dominant in marketing thinking pre World War 2. In discarding them have we “thrown the baby out with the bathwater”?

3. Wroe Alderson in his book Dynamic Marketing Behaviour published in 1965 argued strongly for the development of a theory of marketing. Realistically, since then there has been little interest in meeting this challenge. Is a formal theory of marketing possible and/or desirable? If yes, what might it look like? How could it be used – by managers? academic? If no, why not?

4. What does the future hold for the discipline of marketing – is it simply increasing specialisation or integration? How should social issues and concerns be factored into the development of the discipline? Should marketing have something to say about the regulation of competition? About consumer legislation? About environmental tradeoffs and debates? About corporate social responsibility
3. 10 March (pm) Marketing Theory and Marketing Practice

Readings:

Review readings for week 1 above.

A. H. Van de Ven and P. E. Johnson “Knowledge for theory and Practice” Academy of Management Review 31 (4), 802-821 (NB. see also response by McKelvey in same issue and their reply)

Additional Reading:

C. C. Lundberg “Is there really nothing so practical as a good theory” Business Horizons 47: 5 2004 7-14

Discussion Questions

1) Distinguish between the “Marketing Concept” and the “Concept of Marketing”
   Are the 4Ps a valid concept of marketing?

2) Marketing has been defined as the study of market exchange. What other types of exchanges take place in society and how does market exchange differ from these other types? What types of work has to be done to bring about market exchange and who does it?

3) Distinguish between normative and positive types of marketing and management theory. How are they related?

4) Philip Kotler wrote an article with the title “Buying is marketing too” In what sense is a theory buying part of marketing theory? Do we need the same kind of theory of buying as we do of marketing management from the seller’s perspective?

5) “It’s all very well in theory but no good in practice” What does this statement mean and how valid is it? Should or should not marketing managers study marketing theory?

6) What are the causes of the discrepancies between the types of marketing theories produced by marketing academics and the types required by users (i.e. managers and policy makers) of such theories? What can and should be done about this?
4. 17 March (am) Resource Based Theories and Service Dominant Logic

Readings

S. Vargo and R. Lusch “Evolving to a New Dominant Logic for Marketing” Journal of Marketing 68 (January), 2004, 1-17

R. Layton “Marketing systems and the search for a dominant logic” Working paper, School of Marketing, UNSW 2007

Additional Readings:

R. Lusch and S Vargo eds. The Service-Dominant Logic of Marketing: Dialog, Debate and Directions ME Sharpe 2006

Discussion Questions

1. To what extent is the resource based view a tautology? If so is it still relevant and useful?

2. What are the main types of firm competences required to survive and prosper in today’s business environment?

3. What are the implications of the results of the research reported in the article by Wiggins

4. Are suppliers or customers’ resources and competences part of a firm’s resources and competences? What are the problems in using those resources? Does this suggest other types of resources or competencies a firm.

5. Is service-dominant logic a new theory of marketing or old wine in new bottles?

6. What are the implications of service dominant logic for resource advantage theory? Are they complementary, compatible or competing theories?
17 March (pm) Market Orientation

Readings

Additional Reading

Discussion Questions
Please read the set readings before we meet. You will find it easiest to start your reading with Pulendran et al. and end with the articles by Uncles and Wilkinson. There is no necessity to read the articles by Narver & Slater and Kohli & Jaworski, however these classics are made available to you for the sake of completeness – they initiated interest in market orientation.

When reading the articles, consider the following questions:

1) What is meant by the term “market orientation”?
2) Why has market orientation captured the imagination of so many marketers?
3) How do firms (or SBUs) develop a market orientation?
4) What is the relationship between a firm’s (or SBU’s) market orientation and the other key resources and competences that were discussed in an earlier class?
5) Thinking of your own firm (or SBU), do you consider yourself to be market oriented?
6) How might you use an assessment of your market orientation?
7) For what reasons should you be cautious about relying too heavily on your assessment of your market orientation?
8) Are there business circumstances and contexts in which a market orientation may not be appropriate?

Readings

Additional Readings

Discussion Questions

1) These two readings look at the definition and structure of a ‘market’ from two different points of view. Contrast these similarities and differences.

2) How does the Dowling and Midgley paper cope with the point made by Shocker that “there is no true market structure with which the results of particular analytic approaches can be compared” (p107)?
7. 25 March (pm) Practices in Marketing Science

Readings

Brody, E. I. “Marketing engineering at BBDO” Interfaces; May/Jun 2001; 31, 3

Lilien; Gary L Rangaswamy, Arvind “The marketing engineering imperative: Introduction to the special issue” Interfaces 31(May/Jun) 2001

Lodish, Leonard M “Building marketing models that make money” Interfaces; 31 (May/June) 2001

Discussion Questions

To be Advised
8. 31 March (am) Relationship Marketing

Readings

Readings and questions to be advised

9. 31 March (pm) Current Perspectives on Consumer and Buyer Behaviour Theory

Readings and questions to be advised

| 7 April | No Classes - Easter Recess |
10. 14 April (am) Macro Marketing

S.Brown (1999), “Retro-marketing: yesterday’s tomorrows, today!”, Marketing Intelligence and Planning, 17 7 363-376

Questions

1) How might insights from macromarketing assist in the process of recovery from a major natural disaster such as the recent tsunami in Southern Asia?

2) Are the issues described in the Visanathan et al paper simply part of a wider concern about marketing system dysfunctionality? In Australia, is this a factor in concerns about Redfern, Palm Island, and outback communities? How might these issues be studied?

3) Should we take Stephen Brown seriously? Is marketing practice reshaping society in ways that we might come to regret? Is this a matter for imposed regulation? For industry self regulation?

4) Identify an example of a macromarketing challenge under each of the four categories of (1) competition and markets (2) marketing ethics and distributive justice (3) marketing and development/global policy and environment, and (4) quality of life. In each case, is it a challenge that should be taken up by marketing scholars and/or managers? Could marketing as a discipline make a significant contribution to understanding the challenge and its resolution?
11. 14 April (pm) B2B Marketing and the IMP Perspective

Readings

Additional Reading

Discussion Questions

1) What are the key differences between relationship management in consumer markets and business to business markets?

2) Woolworths is engaged in a major project to restructure its supply chain in order to create a more efficient and effective system. This involves changing the nature of the relations with its suppliers from a number that have been adversarial and/or arms length market type relations to more collaborative and closely coordinated relations. What advice would you offer Woolworths about changing relations to more collaborative forms?

3) Michael Porter, in his book on Competitive Strategy, argues as follows: “Spread purchases… in such a way as to improve the firm’s bargaining position. The business given to each supplier must be large enough to cause the supplier concern over losing it…Purchasing everything from one supplier may yield that supplier too much of an opportunity to exercise power or build switching costs… A purchaser would seek to create as much supplier dependence on its business as possible and reap the maximum volume discounts without exposing itself to too great a risk of falling prey to switching costs…. Create a threat of backward integration.” A manager in a business article comments: “The conventional wisdom is that business is war, cooperation is for wimps, and winning is everything. Boundaries must therefore be firmly established and defended, communication restricted.” To what extent do you agree with this argument?

4) Map the value net for a firm you are familiar with. Identify significant inter-organisational relations, the functions they provide the firm and the issues involved in managing the relation. What other types of relations might be relevant for the firm to consider?
12.  21 April (am)  Complexity, Uncertainty, Effectuation Theory and Marketing Strategy

Readings

---

Final Exam (Take home): due 28 April

---

Workload

It is expected that you will normally spend 10 to 12 hours a week studying for this course. In addition to attending classes, you will need to devote time to:

- Reading and researching
- Class preparation of readings and discussion questions
- Preparation of written reports on assigned readings/discussion questions
- Assessment tasks

In periods where you need to complete assignments or prepare for examinations the time required may be greater.

Please note that Faculty reviews consistently show that two factors have a detrimental effect on students’ academic performance:

- Undertaking an excessive workload of study and paid employment
- Poor time management, especially insufficient time devoted to study outside of classes

You should take the required workload into account when planning how to balance study with paid employment and other activities.

Format and teaching approach

The course consists of 3 hour sessions held of Saturday mornings and afternoons for the first 7 weeks of the university semester. It is delivered by several senior academics from the School of Marketing focusing on particular areas of their expertise. A participative teaching style is adopted throughout. Each week a set of readings is assigned as well as discussion questions which will for the basis for the class discussion and interaction. Students are expected to read all the assigned readings for each week and to prepare written reports and presentations for particular readings and/or discussion questions as assigned by the lecturers. The written reports will be handed in for grading and copies are to provided to all members of the class. These reports are an important component of the grade and your best two reports will be used as part of your grade.

The textbook

The prescribed textbook is: B.Weitz and R.Wensley (eds) Handbook of Marketing, Sage 2002. Additional readings are assigned for each week as shown in this course outline.
The textbook covers material related to this course and material relevant to other courses in the Masters of Marketing. It is designed as an up to date review of the main literature on marketing theory and practice and is designed for specialist higher degree programs in marketing. The book is in closed reserve in the library and available through Amazon.com in the USA and UK and should be ordered as soon as possible by students. Copies of the first 2-3 chapters used in the course will be provided as part of the reading pack for the course in order to allow for delays in shipping.
Assessment

All assessment tasks are subject to the following SISTM policies:

Any number of the assessment components may be scaled to a mean of 60%.

All components of assessment must be completed at a satisfactory level (normally a minimum mark of 50%). If this level of performance is not achieved in any component a UF will be awarded.

Team members are expected to work in a harmonious and professional manner.

This course will be assessed in accordance with the School’s assessment policies that can be found at: sistm.web.unsw.edu.au

Assignment 1 – Written reports on readings or discussion questions

Due: Each week students will be assigned readings or discussion questions to critically review and discuss and to present to the class. Word length: 2-3 typed pages.

• Presentations may use 2-3 overhead slides to summarise main points
• For Readings:
  - Summarise main points and contributions
  - Critically evaluate the arguments and evidence presented
  - Relate the issues discussed to other readings and to professional experience as appropriate
  - Identify other issues arising.
• Discussion Questions:
  - Take a point of view on the issues involved and provide supporting arguments for the view taken
  - Relate your arguments to assigned readings plus other research and experience
Critical Reflection Report

Due: May 7th. Word length: Max 10 pages double spaced, plus appendices

The project will reflect the emphasis of the course on being able to understand and use different perspectives of marketing. Your task will be as follows:

1. Identify which marketing perspectives appear to dominate in your own organisation (or the organisation you are most familiar with), and the appropriateness (including relative strengths and weaknesses) of these perspectives given the organisation’s marketing objectives; and

2. Suggest opportunities for improvement that could be realised if concepts and tools from perspectives not currently in use were adopted. This should take the form of a marketing agenda for senior management that outlines what actions should be taken (and by whom) to significantly improve the value added by marketing.

You should take the perspective of the CMO (Chief Marketing Officer) who has been asked to conduct a high level audit of the organisation’s marketing activities and provide recommendations for improvement. In assessing the project, we will be looking for the following:

- thorough, focused and insightful analysis;
- a demonstrated understanding of the different perspectives covered by the course;
- an ability to apply these perspectives;
- creative recommendations;
- realism; and
- well argued and presented communication

Presentation and participation

Active participation is an important component of the Master Marketing. All students are expected to participate in class discussions and activities as well as, at various times throughout the session, make presentations in class.

Final Examination

The final exam will be a take home essay exam due on May 7th with a choice of questions. The essay questions will be based on the discussion questions used in the course and other issues arising in discussion and presentations.

All exams are conducted in accordance with the UNSW Rules for the Conduct of Examinations and it is the student’s responsibility to be familiar with these rules. For more information, refer to the Master of Marketing Student Information Guide or the UNSW examination website at: http://www.studentadmin.unsw.edu.au/academiclife/assessment/examinations/examination_rules.shtml

Any review of assessment results will be conducted in accordance with the School's assessment policies that can be found at: insert web address
Grading and feedback

All assignments and examinations are assessed using the Fail, Pass, Credit, Distinction and High Distinction grading system (see table below)

Assignment submission

Unless otherwise arranged with the lecturer, all assessment must be submitted in the class in which it is due.

Late submission

Assignments are due on the date indicated in this overview. Extensions will only be granted on medical or compassionate grounds under extreme circumstances, and will not be granted because of work and other commitments. Requests for extensions must be made in writing to the lecturer prior to the due date. Medical certificates or other evidence of extreme misfortune must be attached and must contain information that justifies the extension sought.

Late submission of assignments will incur a penalty of 10% of the percentage weight of the assessment component per day after the due date. An extension in the time of submission will only be granted under exceptional circumstances by the lecturer-in-charge. In all cases documented evidence must be provided.

Word count & assignment format

Word count limits are a guide but assignments significantly greater than this will be penalised. All assessment should include an assignment cover sheet clearly indicating date submitted, course number and name, students name and contact details and course coordinator. Written work such as essays should be typed in 12point font, single spaced and stapled with allowance made (2.5 cm on each side) in the margin for comments and feedback. Please do not bind assignments.
Student responsibilities

Attendance and participation

Students are expected to be regular and punctual in attendance at all classes in the courses in which they are enrolled. It is important to note that if students attend less than eighty per cent of their possible classes they may be refused final assessment. All requests for non-attendance at class must be submitted to your lecturer or the Director, Master of Marketing.

Academic honesty

Students and staff are governed by the normal laws which regulate our daily lives. But in addition the University has its own code of rules and conduct. This is because good conduct and academic honesty are fundamental to the mission of the University as an institution devoted to the pursuit of excellence in scholarship and research, and to the service of society. These principles apply not only to students but to the whole University community, including staff engaged in research. They have been developed over many years and are widely supported by staff and students. Staff and students are committed to good conduct and academic honesty and are keen to see that these values and principles are upheld.

The University Council has defined student misconduct as follows (29th August 1994): Student misconduct includes student academic misconduct and also encompasses conduct which impairs the reasonable freedom of other persons to pursue their studies or research or to participate in the life of the University.

It is the responsibility of all students to familiarise themselves with the rules that govern student and academic misconduct. For more information, please see: http://www.student.unsw.edu.au/academiclife/assessment/academic_misconduct.shtml

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is considered academic misconduct and, as such, will be severely penalised. Plagiarism involves using the work of another person and presenting it as one’s own. Acts of plagiarism include copying parts of a document without acknowledging and providing the source for each quotation or piece of borrowed material. These rules against plagiarism apply whatever the source of the work relied upon may be, whether printed, stored on a compact disc or other medium, found on the World Wide Web or Internet.

Similarly, using or extracting another person’s concepts, experimental results or conclusions, summarising another person’s work or, where, there is collaborative preparatory work, submitting substantially the same final version of any material as another student constitutes plagiarism.

It is your responsibility to make sure you acknowledge within your writing where you have “sourced” the information, ideas and facts etc.
The basic principles are that you should not attempt to pass off the work of another person as your own, and it should be possible for a reader to check the information and ideas that you have used by going to the original source material. Acknowledgment should be sufficiently accurate to enable the source to be located speedily. If you are unsure whether, or how, to make acknowledgment consult your lecturer.

For more information on plagiarism and how to avoid it, visit the UNSW Learning Centre website: http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/onlib/plag.html
